UP govt raises honorarium of village watchmen

ANNOUNCES ₹5 LAKH CASHLESS HEALTHCARE COVER

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ Bareilly

Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath on Tuesday announced a Rs 1,000 monthly increase in the honorarium of gram praharis) (village watchmen), raising their monthly payment from ₹2,500 to ₹3,500.

He also announced plans to provide cashless healthcare coverage of up to ₹5 lakh annually to approximately 68,000 village watchmen and their families.

Addressing a programme organised at the Bareilly Police Lines, the chief minister said the 40 per cent increase in honorarium would provide each village watchman with an additional annual income of ₹12,000.

He noted that the honorarium of village watchmen had been increased from ₹1,500 to ₹2,500 in 2019.

Before 2017, the gram praharis received an honorarium of just ₹1,500,

The proposed healthcare facility will allow village watchmen and their family members to receive treatment worth up to ₹5 lakh under the planned cashless medical coverage.

The announcements were aimed at improving the welfare of personnel who play an important role in maintaining security and gathering information at the village level.

Emphasising the importance of village watchmen in the state's security system, Yogi Adityanath described their role as comparable to that of CCTV cameras in rural areas. He said their primary responsibility was to remain alert, observe suspicious activities, collect reliable information and promptly communicate it to the police.

The chief minister advised village watchmen not to confront suspects or take action on their own. Instead, they should inform the station house officer or the local sub-inspector about any suspicious activity, even if the information has not been fully verified, so that the police can investigate it.

He also directed police station in-charges and local sub-inspectors to hold meetings with village watchmen at least once a week to gather information and address local problems.

The Home Department has been asked to fill vacant village watchman positions through local arrangements and ensure regular coordination meetings.

The chief minister said village watchmen could help authorities tackle rumours, monitor land-grabbing activities and alert officials about potential threats from wildlife, particularly in districts such as Pilibhit, Lakhimpur Kheri and Bahraich.

Timely information, he said, could prevent serious incidents and help protect rural communities. The chief minister asserted that UP has witnessed a significant change in its law-and-order situation since 2017.

"Before 2017, those who were in power were the ones indulging in loot and plunder. Those who claimed to be protectors were themselves thieves. They committed or orchestrated dacoities. So, from whom could the public have expected justice? Even the police would remain silent," the chief minister said, adding that today, criminals in UP fear the law; people celebrate festivals without fear.

"Huge crowds of devotees thronging temples during Navratri are a living example of this,"he said. The chief minister said that before his government came to power, people of UP faced an identity crisis and struggled to get rooms in hotels and seats on buses in other states.

"The fact that UP has become safe has changed the perception of the state held in the rest of the country and world. Earlier, people used to think that UP would not improve," he said. He added that UP's image had changed nationally and internationally, with improved security helping promote business, attract investment and create employment opportunities.

He also stressed the need to ensure that police personnel, Home Guards, Provincial Rakshak Dal (PRD) members and village watchmen received appropriate facilities and recognition.

The chief minister said the government had earlier arranged torches and sticks for village watchmen in 2019 and was now seeking to strengthen their role through better financial support and coordination with the police.

During the programme, the chief minister felicitated 11 village watchmen for their outstanding work by presenting them with traditional turbans and gift hampers. The awardees included personnel from Bareilly, Pilibhit, Shahjahanpur, Moradabad, Bijnor, Sambhal, Rampur and Amroha districts.

A short film highlighting the contribution of village watchmen was also screened. Finance and Parliamentary Affairs Minister Suresh Kumar Khanna praised the chief minister's decision, saying the honorarium increase reflected the government" concern for the welfare of village-level security personnel. Cabinet Minister Dharampal Singh also praised the improvement in rural security, claiming that stricter policing had increased fear among criminals and strengthened the public's sense of safety.

'Double-engine' UP govt dedicated to ensuring women's dignity: Yogi

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ Lucknow

Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath on the third day of Sharadiya Navratri offered prayers to Maa Chandraghanta, saying she represents the indomitable courage of women. Yogi Adityanath, in a nod to the spirit of the occasion, said that the "double-engine" government in UP is dedicated to ensuring women's dignity, self-respect and a life of honour.

The UP government, under the guidance of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, is setting new benchmarks in women's empowerment through good governance, he said on X. The chief minister said that the divine form of Maa Chandraghanta symbolises the radiance, dignity and indomitable courage of women's strength and conveys the message that women's safety, respect and self-respect are the foundation of an empowered and prosperous society. Before his government came to power in 2017, "rampant lawlessness across the state had cast a shadow over women's safety and dignity," Adityanath alleged.

At that time, instead of empowering mothers and sisters, the primary focus was on strengthening the families of those in power, the CM said, attacking opposition parties.

Yogi Adityanath added that the government's initiatives now range from protecting the lives of girl children and raising awareness about education through Beti Bachao, Beti Padhao, to supporting their bright future through the Mukhyamantri Kanya Sumangala Yojana and ensuring dignity in marriage through the Mukhyamantri Samuhik Vivah Yojana.

The government initiatives also include supporting motherhood through the Pradhan Mantri Matru Vandana Yojana, providing relief from smoke through the Ujjwala Yojana, safeguarding women's dignity through the construction of household toilets under the Izzat Ghar initiative, and granting property rights through Gharauni, he said.

The government has also ensured lifelong free bus travel for women aged above 60 years and provided social security through old-age pensions.
